Common Techniques of Marking Answer Scripts.

It is compulsory to adhere to the following standard method in marking answer scripts and entering marks into the mark sheets.

1. Use a red color ball point pen for marking. (Only Chief/Additional Chief Examiner may use a mauve color pen.)
2. Note down Examiner's Code Number and initials on the front page of each answer script.
3. Write off any numerals written wrong with a clear single line and authenticate the alterations with Examiner's initials.
4. Write down marks of each subsection in \triangle and write the final marks of each question as a rational number in a \square with the question number. Use the column assigned for Examiners to write down marks.

Example:

MCQ answer scripts: (Template) www.englishliteraturesrilanka.com

1. Mark the correct options on the template according to the Marking Scheme. Cut off the marked windows with a blade. Cut off the cages for Index Number and the number of correct options so as to be able to keep the template correctly on the answer script. Cut off a blank space to the right of each options column to mark the answers. Submit the prepared template to the Chief Examiner for approval.
2. Then, check the answer scripts carefully. If there are more than one or no answers Marked to a certain question write off the options with a line. Sometimes candidates may have erased an option marked previously and selected another option. In such occasions, if the erasure is not clear write off those options too.
3. Place the template on the answer script correctly. Mark the right answers with a 'v' and the wrong answers with a 'X' against the options column. Write down the number of correct answers inside the cage given under each column. Then, add those numbers and write the number of correct answers in the relevant cage.

Structured essay type and essay type answer scripts:

1. Cross off any pages left blank by candidates. Underline wrong or unsuitable answers. Show areas where marks can be offered with check marks.
2. Use the right margin of the overland paper to write down the marks.
3. Write down the marks given for each question against the question number in the relevant cage on the front page in two digits. Selection of questions should be in accordance with the instructions given in the question paper. Mark all answers and transfer the marks to the front page, and write off answers with lower marks if extra questions have been answered against instructions.
4. Add the total carefully and write in the relevant cage on the front page. Turn pages of answer script and add all the marks given for all answers again. Check whether that total tallies with the total marks written on the front page.

Preparation Of Mark Sheets.

Except for the subjects with a single question paper, final marks of two papers will not be calculated within the evaluation board this time. Therefore add separate mark sheets for each of the question paper. Write paper 01 marks in the paper 01 column of the mark sheet and write them in words too. Write paper II Marks in the paper II Column and right the relevant details. For the subject 43 Art, marks for Papers 01, 02 and 03 should be entered numerically in the mark sheets.

For subjects 21 Sinhala language and literature and 22 Tamil Language and literature, paper I marks once entered numerally should be written in words. For the papers II and III enter the detailed marks separately and put the total in each paper in the relevant column.

Final marks for paper I, paper II or paper III should always be rounded up to the nearest whole number and they should never be kept as decimal values.

DETAILED MARKING SCHEME AND GUIDELINES TO ANSWERS

2019

1. Introduction

Appreciation of English Literary Texts supplants the former subject entitled English Literature. New content is introduced under all these sections. The poetry section is organized under five themes. As in the previous subject, the examination tests both genre awareness and skills. Cognitive skills which are given priority at every examination like knowledge, comprehension, application, analysis, and evaluation are given weightage. But a test of literature cannot test cognitive skill only. It needs to give consideration to the affective dimension or feeling as well. Hence, skills related to that dimension like empathy and critical response are also tested. It goes without saying that appreciation of English Literary Texts, being an aesthetic subject that touches the both the mind and heart cannot be evaluated using a very rigid instrument. The examination and evaluation process has to provide for freedom of thought and feeling and accommodate creativity- independence in response. A marking scheme while it attempts to enforce uniformity (and this uniformity is essential at a national examination) must not cramp and hinders a candidate's achievement by imposing rigidly planned dissolutions .what is provided in the marking scheme is a guideline. At no point must this marking scheme be taken as a rigid instrument to be adhered to rigidly. Examiners must be sensitive to the candidates who have independent, creative ways of thinking and demonstrate a capacity for critical thought.

Instantly they were torn away by the officers, and one of them was kept in a tight grip, but the other broke loose, saying she would die with her mother; and before she could be stopped she had flung her arms about her mother’s neck again. She was torn away once more, and with her gown on fire. Two or three men held her, and the burning portion of her gown was snatched off and thrown flaming aside, she struggling all the while to free herself, and saying she would be alone in the world, now; and begging to be allowed to die with her mother. ‘Writer’ meant in Jagan’s dictionary only one thing—a ‘clerk’—an Anglo-Indian, colonial term from the days when Macaulay had devised a system of education to provide a constant supply of clerical staff for the East India Company. Jagan felt aghast. Here he was trying to shape the boy into an aristocrat with a bicycle, college life, striped shirts, and everything, and he wanted to be a ‘writer’! Strange!

‘Why does he want to be a writer?’ he asked.

‘I don’t know. You will have to ask him.’

‘Where does he want to work? It’s degrading!’ he cried, ‘after all the trouble I have taken to build up a reputation and a status!’ He beat his brow in despair.”

Part II
POETRY
(Answer one question only)

2. Discuss Emily Dickinson's A Bird Came Down the Walk as a minute observation of nature.

- Students would identify that this is a poem about the beauty of nature, especially the beauty of a bird's movements and the excitement of bird watching.
- The bird is observed as nature / Bird represents nature.
- His characteristics reflect aspects of nature.
- In each of the stanzas, the observer of the bird offers a minute detailed but condensed, concise description of the bird. The description includes the way the bird walks, eats, drinks, hops, glances, and unrolls feathers, rows and flies. Collectively, the description adds beauty to the bird and shows its eccentric behavior filled with its pride and self-assuredness.
- Given below are some points to support the above argument.
 - ✓ The description adds power, vigour to the bird. For instance, "he bit an angle-warm in halves...raw " The word halves suggest quickness and stamina.
 - ✓ The bird's intelligence is suggested through its selection of a "convenient" grass./also tolerance
 - ✓ Its distance from the unwanted is shown through the way allows the beetle to pass.
 - ✓ The bird is presented as a creature with dignity and self-dependency. For instance, when the bird is offered a crumb, which usually refers to a small segment of a bigger portion of food, it leaves the place without being dependent, showcasing the bird's pride in itself.
 - ✓ His cautiousness and intelligence can also be considered as a point to support the answer.
 - ✓ His beauty is also suggested – velvet head / flight

3. "War is not kind." Discuss how this idea is presented in Stephen Crane's War is Kind.

- Students may identify that the poem's title is ironically presented as the content in the poem paradoxically states the brutality, death, inhumanity, sorrow and pain of wars. Hence the poem shows that wars are not kind.
- Students will support their argument through the following points.
- Wars kill males – fathers, sons and fiancés. They are the direct victims of wars.
- Then the poem also draws its attention to the indirect victims of wars, the counterparts of the aforesaid males, children, wives and mothers.
- Wars separate lovers; children lose their fathers; mothers lose their sons;
- Hence, wars create thousands of human corpses.
- Repetition of the phrase "do not weep" also reiterates that war results in agony and pain.
- Accordingly, glorification of war is inexplicable; glorification of war is hence subtly criticized in the poem.
- Writer juxtaposes the reality and the glorification.
- The devices used to bring out the message of the war.
 - simile
 - irony
 - metaphors
 - oxymoron
 - Juxtaposition of the reality with the illusion

4. “Gabriel Okara’s Once Upon a Time is a depiction of people’s pretence and hypocrisy.” Discuss.

- The poem is a dramatically presented poetic description of an adult’s reflection of his past.
- Explanation to a young person, particularly to a son.
- Presented through the first person narrative, the poem is an outspoken honest description of the speaker’s both sincere and insincere actions; it shows how the speaker has become insincere and deceitful with time and due to the societal influence. The speakers seem to justify that his/her current hypocrisy stating that it is caused through social influences. “I have learnt to wear many faces”
- The speaker however laments for his/her insincerity and articulates his/her needs to undo it, and asks advice from the little one.
- The poem is presented as a comparison between the present and the past: the past seems genuine and sincere in contrast to the present.
- The present society is insincere, money-oriented, people are selfish and double-minded; people are hypocrites and are not happy because they just show “teeth” , not their “laughter”.
- Implicit is the destruction caused in an individual in a particular period of time in history.
- The speaker is however not pessimistic, but optimistic as he/she gets advice from the youth to regain laughter and pleasure and redress the damage, as shown through, for example, “I want to unlearn all these muting things.”

5. Examine the importance of close family relationships as represented in Gabriela Mistral’s Fear.

- The poem is a subtle depiction of a parent’s anxiety and excitement about the relationship between parents and children, particularly of a mother and a daughter.
- It specifically refers to the speaker’s reluctance and nervousness to distance the daughter from the speaker, probably the mother, which might happen due to material assets and achievements the child gains in due course.
- The aforesaid idea is presented in each verse referring to close, cordial caring actions experienced by the two.
- The parent does not want the little girl to become a swallow, a bird which is found around the world on all continents, and which is used to ariel feeding./seasonal too.
- The mother fears that the daughter will be an opportunist.
- What is suggested is the fear of losing the child and the speaker’s close attention and care. The speaker is worried that she would not be able to “comb here hair” and she would not receive her closeness if the child flies away from her.
- The speaker fear is justified saying that the child’s new surrounding will be risky and dangerous for her. For instance, the nest in the “eaves” would be more risky and less comfortable than the “straw bed”. www.englishliteraturesrilanka.com
- If the child becomes a “princess” she would not be able to “play on the meadow”, on the grass, consequently the parent and the child will be distanced. This subtly suggests the speaker’s possessive love as well as she would not “sleep at my side”. This is also reiterated through the next line where the speaker suggests the distance between a “queen” and a person who is not on that level of material successes - power and social status.

6. Examine how lazy people are laughed at and satirized in Rudyard Kipling's The Camel's Hump.

- The poem highlights the importance of work - courage and energy and willingness to work.
- This is shown by way of humor employed to satirize persons who are lazy and reluctant to work.
- The satire is summed up in a visual imagery of a hump which is uglier than a camel's hump.
- This hump is described with negative attitudes and as a common sickness among anyone irrespective of their age.
- Many negatively connoted words are used to describe the hump: its colour is not bright and its "horrible" and it's an illness.
